

Mike Majcen

Director

Mike Majcen supports corporate clients in executing successful branding initiatives, advocacy efforts, messaging campaigns, and government relations strategies. Mike has over a decade of experience managing multi-faceted public affairs efforts and has extensive expertise on legislative and regulatory challenges for a wide range of issues involving technology, logistics, healthcare, education, and consumer economic matters. Across many client issues, Mike develops innovative campaign-style research efforts to help inform campaign messaging and tactics.

Prior to his time at DCI, Mike worked in the trade policy studies department at the Cato Institute and worked with the communications team in the Capitol Hill office of Rep. J. Randy Forbes (VA-04).

Mike earned his Bachelor of Arts in economics, along with multi-disciplinary business training, from Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. Additionally, he spent time studying Spanish, economics, and history at the Universidad Complutense de Madrid in Spain.
