

Oliver Wolf

Partner

Oliver Wolf is a partner at DCI where he manages international and domestic public affairs campaigns that focus on environmental and energy policy, trade, technology, tax, financial services, and development issues. Oliver specializes in providing counsel for strategic planning, campaign management, tactics, grassroots coalition building, and strategic alliances for DCI's corporate and non-profit clients. During Oliver's tenure at DCI, he has worked on a diverse cross section of industries. In the energy sector, he has led campaigns related to access, infrastructure, regulations, investor relations, tax, trade, power generation, legal support and other issues. He has overseen client relations, day-to-day operations, media support and strategic counsel for Broadband for America, an association of Internet-related companies supporting America's global leadership role in Internet service. He has been engaged by Embassy of Japan for media relations and educational support in Washington on the benefits of Japan's entry in the Trans-Pacific Partnership free trade agreement. He has served as a delegate and managed media relations for the U.S. Delegation at the 2012 World Conference on International Telecommunications (WCIT). He managed operations for the Internet Governance Coalition, an association of global Internet companies in support of a free and open Internet internationally. He has also led media relations support for various NGO delegations at UN Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC) Conference of Parties and regional meetings around the world. Prior to joining DCI in 2007, Oliver served as former U.S. Senator Lincoln Chafee's (R-RI) Field Director for his 2006 re-election campaign. In this capacity, he managed field staff, coordinated voter turnout efforts, and organized coalition outreach for the former Senator's campaign. Previously, Oliver worked for the Bush-Cheney '04 campaign in Maine. A native of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Oliver earned a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Political Science from Bates College in Lewiston, Maine and studied at the University of Cape Town, South Africa. Outside of work, Oliver enjoys chasing around his two toddlers, Zachary and Bridget, and rooting for his hometown Steelers and Pirates.
